Message from the President

Resa Nichols Hennings

As the year winds down and we approach Thanksgiving, it is the time to reflect and consider our blessings. Having just suffered through Hurricane Ike and watching a volatile Wall Street, many of us may not feel so charitable...what blessings? Sometimes we must search our hearts and minds extensively to find those elusive blessings. They are there.

This Friday is our "Munch and Mingle" celebration—7 p.m. at the church. It will truly be like our ancestors' old time "social." Please bring your favorite hors d'oeuvre or dessert. And the more the merrier...friends and family and neighbors are more than welcome. Bring an entourage! I know some pleasant surprises are in store for us as Tina Chatham and her Holiday Party committee have been working overtime.

Be sure to mark your calendar for the next general meeting: January 30, 2009—coffee at 6:30 p.m. And the meeting begins promptly at 7:00 p.m. The next Board meeting will be January 26 at 6:30 p.m. As usual, all members are encouraged to attend Board meetings.

Best wishes for a Happy Thanksgiving.

Resa

Thank You Susie Ganch

Volume 7, Number 4 of the Quarterly was the last one for Editor Susie Ganch. From December 2004 to September 2008 she has served spectacularly...16 issues! That milestone was accomplished by much hard work and hours and hours of effort. We are most fortunate to have had Susie and are grateful for the fine publication she produced.

You have research questions, your fellow BAGS members have answers...

Question: My great grandmother's maiden name is not on the U.S. Census. I don't know where to find it.

Answers:

Melodey Hauch suggests 9 methods of finding a female ancestor's maiden name.

1. If you know where she was buried, first check the tombstone. It may have her maiden name and then a "Wife of" inscription.
2. Check for death records. If she died recently enough that there is a death certificate, it should have her parents' names.
3. Check for newspaper obituaries. Look at the public libraries near where they lived for old newspapers on microfilm. Often it will mention her deceased parents or a brother as a survivor.
4. Check the county marriage records where they were living at Clayton and online. For online searching, start with www.USGenWeb.org, go to the state that you need and then the possible county or counties. Check the Clayton books for those county records or the microfilm records for those counties on the second floor.
5. Check family history books at Clayton and the county heritage books. They may include both families.
6. If these don't work, you need to look at every single census they appeared on together. They may have lived with the wife's parents at the beginning of the marriage. Quite often, the wife's widowed mother or a younger brother or a sister will be in the household.
7. Try probate records and will books in the county where they lived. If there are published records at Clayton, look for her married name. Often the father's will lists his daughters' married names or their husbands' name.

8. Check land records. Land may have passed from father to daughter. The deeds may have the married names of the daughters.
9. If none of these methods provide the answer, you need to start looking at families listed around them on the census, before and after they got married. In the censuses before they married, try to find a woman with the same first name and approximate year of birth nearby. I hope her first name isn't Mary or Elizabeth. If she has an unusual name, be sure to check for different spellings. Good luck.

Mary Martin expands on #4 in Melodey's list by explaining there is a series of books that are compiled, extracted, and transcribed by Liahona Research that are done by states such as Illinois, Kentucky, North Carolina, etc. There are also other books that contain marriage records by state. Many of the county histories have marriage records in them, and some counties have a marriage index for their county. Some of the states have a marriage index on the Internet; Illinois is one that Mary has used that has a tremendous set of records. She has also found marriage records for Tippecanoe County, Indiana and Daviess County, Missouri on the Internet.

Alice Braud-Jones recommends the book A Genealogist's Guide to Discovering Your Female Ancestors by Sharon DeBartolo Carmack available at Clayton, HCPL Parker Williams (10851 Scarsdale at Beamer), Helen Hall (League City) and Texas City libraries. Continuing #9 in Melodey's list, Alice suggests looking at the previous census and the neighbors' names. It is very possible that she is in one of those families. If that fails, look at the local/county histories and family histories of parents, brothers and sisters from other researchers of the same name. It is possible that someone has included the last name of this individual in their work.

Membership

Tammy Frey, Registrar

I guess it's true that Texans are tough. Despite all that we have been through and are still dealing with as a result of Hurricane Ike, our membership drive was an outstanding success! These are some truly dedicated genealogists – they may be rebuilding their homes, but they are not going to neglect their family history! As of 10/31/08, our renewed membership now totals 166. We look forward to a great year together!

It is important to keep our information up to date. If you have any changes in or corrections to your contact information during the year, please notify us at Registrar@TxBayAreaGen.org.

New Name Tags

Tammy Frey, Registrar

You may have noticed a change in the BAGS name tags. A number of people have noticed and asked questions about some of the changes. There are several things that may be noted on the tags. One is "Charter Member" status. Although each of our members is equally important to us, we do appreciate and want to recognize those pioneering individuals who banded together to start our Society. Generally, this recognition is listed below the member's name. However, if they hold a position within the Society, which would instead be noted below their name, their "Charter Member" recognition will be listed on, or in some cases beneath, the Texas symbol.

Another change is the one that has raised the most questions. "Why are some of the Texas symbols colored yellow or green ... or even red?" The purpose of this is to show our grateful recognition of those who have generously contributed over and above their basic dues amount. You will notice that the yellow Texas symbol contains the word "Contributor". The green symbol says "Patron", and red is "Lifetime". The contribution amounts for these levels are listed at the bottom of the membership application form.

Some of you may not have noticed the opportunity to make an additional donation to the Society. If you wish, you may certainly give an additional amount to reach one of the donor levels. Just send a check (be sure to look at this year's form) and a note to the Registrar. We will be happy to update your name tag! We hope you all enjoy the new name-tag style!
